JULIA LILLIAS DANGER a/k/a JULIA L. DANGER, a distributee, and beneficiary under an earlier will dated October 25, 1989, filed with the Surrogate's Court, objects to the probate of the instrument propounded herein as the last will and testament of Julia Elizabeth Taschereau, late of the County of New York, deceased, upon the following grounds:

FIRST: The alleged will was not duly executed by Julia Elizabeth Taschereau, deceased, she did not publish the same as her will in presence of the witnesses whose names are subscribed thereto, she did not request the witnesses whose names are subscribed thereto, she did not request the two witnesses to be witnesses thereto, and the alleged witnesses did not sign as witnesses in her presence or in the presence of each other

SECOND: Julia Elizabeth Taschereau was not at the time of the making of said alleged will of sound mind and memory and capable of making a will.

THIRD The alleged will was not freely or voluntarily made or executed by Julia Elizabeth Taschereau, as her last will and testament, but the alleged will was obtained and the subscription and publication thereof, if it was in fact subscribed or published by her, were procured by fraud and undue influence practiced upon the decedent by Elizabeth Combier, the principal legatee and devisee named in said paper, and by Kenneth Brown, the attorney who supervised the making of the alleged last will and testament, and/or by some other person or persons acting in concert or privity with them.

FOURTH: A trial by jury of the issues raised in these objections is hereby demanded.

WHEREFORE, Julia Lillias Danger, objectant herein, prays that the above-entitled proceeding be dismissed and that she be granted her costs.
